The pandemic, inflation, disintermediation, consolidation, automation, supply chain, worker shortages, and Amazon, to name a few of the challenges that face industrial distributors today. The last thing a distributor needs is to become a vending expert too. As one of the only independent Inventory Control providers, we remain committed to a full-service business model. We don't have to answer to a corporate tool supplier that has its own priorities and ideas on cutting corners to reduce costs.

We understand that most distributors don't have the time, money, or resources to become experts in inventory management and control. That's why we partner with our customers to effectively leverage our core competencies to create the most effective point-of-use solutions for distributors and their customers. Inventory management gives distributors an edge on their competitors by differentiating their offerings beyond just price. Distributors want improved productivity along with reduced capital and operating expenses; SupplyPro's world-class solutions provide both, increasing the value proposition and allowing distributors to compete in today's market. Inventory control solutions lower both waste and operational downtime by improving the management of mission-critical items at the point of use. It's no wonder, Grand View Research is projecting the industrial vending market will grow to $4.6 billion by 2027.

More Than Just Hardware & Software

Customer requirements have changed. Sophisticated customers, armed with data, and higher expectations of technology are defining our collective future. We believe the solution requires leveraging smart technology and industry experience to deliver one of the most fundamental customer requirements – service.

We partner with our customers. Our broad range of services extends far beyond just delivering flexible point-of-use equipment and industry-leading Intelligent Inventory software – our team of experts works with each distributor to customize and implement solutions that address their customers' unique business demands. From sales and marketing support to installations and systems integrations, to training and customer support, we're committed to the long haul – providing unmatched analytical expertise to help make sure our customers get the most from their investment.
